

The Tuscany Restaurant was the choice of many for an elegant and special Valentine's Day celebration

Pitching in for the evening and dressed in her Valentine's Day red, Marriott Guest Relations Supervisor Elonia was almost overwhelmed by the long line of guests that chose the Tuscany Restaurant in the Marriott Resort and Stellaris Casino as the perfect place for a very special Valentine's Day dinner.

Staying wonderfully capable and cheerful, she saw to it that everyone got a table for their marvelous food, even if they had to set up extras, which was the case, the restaurant was so in demand by lovers and families on Wednesday evening.

While listening to the mellow sounds of Ricardo on the piano providing the perfect background music, long time married couples like Eric and Sheryl Bellamy of Port Washington, Maryland and Anita and Phil Heller of Stockbridge, Massachusetts declared they found the fabulous food and ambiance "absolutely perfect" for a special dinner. Both couples have been returning annually to Aruba for years, and the Bellamy's own timesharing in the Marriott Ocean Club, while the Hellers chose to purchase at the Marriott Ocean Club. Not only was the Tuscany ideal for a special lover's dinner, but also convenient!

Local real estate developer Victor Acosta proved that you did not have to be a Marriott guest to wish to enjoy a glorious dinner at Tuscany with your loved one, though for an island visitor without a car, it helps. The Bellamys and the Hellers, married thirty-two and thirty-six years, respectively, both expressed that they "Love Aruba and that it is one of their favorite spots in the entire world." Obviously, they love it enough to make it their Valentine's Day destination every year!
